7 Address to Her Majesty (Platinum Jubilee)

The Deputy Speaker read a statement from the Speaker as follows:

"The House will be aware that I am absent as I am travelling to the Falkland Islands for a long-planned visit to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the war there.

I had hoped – and passed on my hope to the Government – that the debate on the Humble Address might have been scheduled for an earlier day, so as to avoid the clash, but for reasons I do not fully understand that has not been possible.

Therefore, I hope the House will understand that I want to put on record that no disrespect is intended by my absence – indeed, I look forward to celebrating the Jubilee in the Falkland Islands where, in the words of the Chair of the Legislative Assembly "our distance only serves to strengthen the feelings of gratitude, love and respect, that we have for Her Majesty The Queen".

I would like to give my own short tribute to Her Majesty, the Duke of Lancaster. Most Gracious Sovereign: we, your faithful House of Commons, offer our heartfelt congratulations on the completion of 70 years of your reign. We too are pleased to have contributed to the Jubilee lamps in New Palace Yard to symbolise the enduring and guiding light you have been to our nation and indeed, the whole world.

Not only has Your Majesty been a constant presence in the lives of most of your subjects, but you are also the third-longest serving monarch in world history – and the first in this country to achieve a Platinum Jubilee – which is an incredible feat.

Your long and distinguished reign has seen extraordinary changes at home and in the wider world. The United Kingdom of 1952 would be unrecognisable today. Back then, the country was making tentative steps towards rebuilding and recovering from the ravages of the Second World War – while today, we are grateful to our NHS for leading us through the pandemic, and look warily upon the war in Ukraine and the shockwaves it has delivered across the globe.

We have moved at lightning speed from rationing through to the jet age, to the space age, to the digital age. The nature of society has changed dramatically too, as today we are richly multicultural and multi-faith, celebrating diversity and equality – making this country not only a vibrant and exciting place to live, but one that is proud its people can be true to themselves.

Our place in the world has also changed during this time. Seventy years ago, this Parliament was at the heart of an Empire. Today we are one of 54 independent members of the Commonwealth, of which you are head. We are no longer members of the European Union, and we have chosen to delegate powers to the devolved Parliaments of Scotland and Wales as well as the Northern Ireland Assembly.

The House of Commons today looks rather different from 1952 too. We have 13 times as many women Members – from 17 female MPs in 1951, to 225 in 2022 – and it is also a younger House.

Without doubt your lengthy reign and experience, your sage advice and your devotion to the UK, the British Overseas' Territories, and the Commonwealth of Nations, has been of particular benefit to all 14 prime ministers who have served you over the years.

Platinum is the appropriate epithet for this jubilee. It is one of the purest of the precious metals, it is rare, durable and enormously valued. For 70 years, Your Majesty has profoundly demonstrated all these qualities. On behalf of all the Members of the House of Commons, may I thank you wholeheartedly for all that you have done, are doing and will do for the good of our country."

Resolved, That an humble Address be presented to Her Majesty to offer the heartfelt good wishes and loyal devotion of the House on the occasion of the Seventieth Anniversary of Her Accession to the Throne, expressing its deep gratitude for Her Majesty's lifelong unstinting service, leadership and commitment to the United Kingdom, Dependencies and Territories, Her other Realms, and the Commonwealth.—(The Prime Minister.)
